

INTRODUCTION

Bringing change in self, others and the organization is rather very painful. Organizations are facing changes in business environments, customer needs, people’s expectations and almost all aspects of business. The need and reasons for change management is becoming more important than other management requirements. Quick responses to the business environment changes influences the success of the businesses. But, being painful it is always not as easy as said to bring about changes in response to the changes in the environment.

Learning about Managing change equips you in dealing with the difficulties, challenges and issues of change and supports employees to effectively be the change, become the change and drive the change.
