Building Safe & Sustainable Workplaces through adopting Effective EOHS Requirements/Practices
Date : 17 to 18 March, 2026
Venue : IMTMA Technology Centre, Bengaluru

INTRODUCTION

Environment, Occupational Health and Safety (EOHS) is an integrated management approach aimed at protecting the environment, safeguarding employee health, and ensuring safe workplace operations. EOHS helps organizations identify risks, comply with legal requirements, prevent incidents, and promote sustainable practices. A strong EOHS framework improves operational efficiency, reduces costs associated with accidents and pollution, and reinforces the organization's commitment to responsible and ethical business practices.

FOCUS AREAS

Environmental Management

- Identifying environmental aspects and reducing negative impacts.
- Managing waste, emissions, effluents, and resource consumption.
- Promoting energy conservation, recycling, and pollution prevention.

Occupational Health

- Preventing work-related illnesses through risk assessments and health programs.
- Monitoring exposure to chemicals, noise, ergonomics, and physical strain.
- Encouraging wellness initiatives, medical surveillance, and healthy work conditions.

Safety Management

- Eliminating hazards through engineering and administrative controls.
- Implementing safe operating procedures, PPE usage, and equipment safety.
- Strengthening emergency preparedness, incident reporting, and root-cause analysis.

Compliance & Continual Improvement

- Meeting statutory and regulatory requirements.
- Regular audits, inspections, and corrective actions.
